OFFICIALS ATTEND SIMPLE SERVICES

Rev. Taylor, and Rev. Radcliffe, Pastors, Honored by Visits From Celebrities.

Simple services marked the churches which President Wilson and Vice President Marshall worshiped vester

The Rev. James H. Taylor, at the Central Presbyterian Church, drew from the text, "In My Father's House Are Many Mansions," for his sermon at the morning service, attended by the President. The philosophy of the new religion which was to be established by Jesus' Disciples after his betrayal return of the rich man. He praised the pew Administration for magnifying "the sacredness of the law" and "making it honorable to obey it."

The power over others comes from power over one's self, declared Dr.

There is an authority unlimited which spells righteousness. Piety should belong to the ballot box as well as to the dinner table. There is such a thing not of the Congress. It may not be wise to at once demand that our magistrates and lawmakers be pious men, as it would stop the wheels of the Government.

Rev. Samuel W. Grafflin, the pastor of the future of the Republic is dependent upon the purity and the integrity of the American home. The American people are proud of the home of the White House, and from the White House let us catch the inspiration and spirit of a righteous life which will make our homes four-square. David did not erect an 'Ananias Club.' although he was the advocate of righteousness, truth, and virtue. He had no use for the slanderer and lar. He knew the seculiar vices of the politicians, and harrated them that they might be swept out of existence. Every true Administration will emphasize law, not liberty; responsibility, not license; duties, and not rights.

WILSON TO ACCEPT BASEBALL PASSES

President Is an Ardent Fan. and Will Witness as Many Games as Possible.

President Whom is a baseball fan. He let it be known today that he interes taking advantage of the customary passes which the American and National League have always issued to the nation's Chief Executive, and will witness as many games here as he call witness as many games here as he call smothering the flames. Former President Taft was an occasonal visitor to the Washington baseball park. The late Vice President Sherman seldom missed a game.

Ban Johnson, president of the Amer can League, has sent the President a season pass, to all games played in the National Capital during 1913. A similar pass will be issued during the succeeding years of President Wilson's term, and the President has easerly agreed to take advantage of this honor on every available occasion.

Union Station Designer Dies in New England

Louis Saint Gaudens, brother of the late Augustus Saint Gaudens, died yesterday in Cornish, N. H., after a short terday in Cornish, N. H., after a short illness with pneumonia in his fifty-ninth year. Mr. Saint Gaudens had a host of friends in Washington, and the most notable work he ever did was the arch at the Union Station in this city. The central pavilion at the Union Station, which was modeled by Louis Saint Gaudens, is looked upon as one of the noblest in design in the world.

In many respects the pavilion resembles the arch of Constantine and in its outline preserves the central idea of a colossal city portal. Since he completed his work at the Union Station, Mr. Skint Gaudens has spent little time in Washington. Washington.

Eight young people were received nto the East Washington Heights Baptist Church last night after immersion in the baptismal pool in the Radcliffe.

Continuing, he said:

"The private life of the men up on Capitol Hill and the ruler of this nation is my business. I have a right to demand that not only his external deeds be right, but that the internal motives back of the external deeds are right. There is an authority unlimited which apells righteousness. Piety should bechurch. The ceremony was conducted

The large pipe organ in the chapel hall of the Government Hospital for the Insane will be repaired during the week. A new bellows is to take the place of the one in use for a long time.

"BAD" TEETH SPOIL "GOOD" LOOKS

It is not merely a matter of vanity that you should care to preserve your "good looks." Bad teeth are offensive and advertise to your friends and others that you are of a careless, indifferent character.

Then, too, bad teeth cause bad breath-and this, too, is offensive.

Bad, rotting teeth also are frequently the first causes of obnoxious gases poisoning the blood, causing unsightly eruptions on the face, and thus further spoiling your "good looks."

I have mastered methods by which "BAD" teeth can be transformed into GOOD teeth that almost rival Nature's best. And these methods are used in a painless
